A LAW OF THE LAND.

The Dingley Tariff Bill Finally Passed by Congress, And Signed by President—Congress Adjourned Sine Die.

Washington, July 24.—The tariff bill passed its last legislative stage at 3 p. m. to day, when the Senate, by the decisive vote of 40 to 30, agreed to the conference report on the bill. The announcement of the result was greeted with enthusiastic applause by the crowded chamber. This closed the great labor for which the Fifty-fifth congress assembled in extraordinary session, and after stubborn resistance, at times threatening a dead lock, the senate concurred with the house in a resolution for the final adjournment of the session at 9 o'clock to-night. The president's message for a currency commission was received, but the house bill creating the commission was not acted upon. The closing day was prolific of a series of momentous scenes, each of which alone would have been of extraordinary interest. An analysis of the vote shows that the affirmative vote was cast by 37 republicans, 1 democrat, McEnery, 1 silver republican, (Jones of Nevada), and 1 populist, (Stewart.) The negative vote was cast by 28 democrats and 2 populists, (Harris and Turner.) Mr. Teller, silver republican, and 2 populists, Allen and Butler, were present and did not vote. One populist, Kyle, and 1 silver republican, Pettigrew, were absent without pairs, which was equivalent to withholding their votes.

Although the result was a foregone conclusion, yet this did not abate the eager interest attaching to the close of a great contest. Early in the day the debate was listless, though enlivened at times with violent criticisms by Mr. Allen and by a speech from Mr. Burrows of the finance committee, Messrs. Caffery, Morgan and Stewart occupied the time up to 3 o'clock, when the vote was promptly taken. Then came a long parliamentary battle over final adjournment. The opposition endeavored to score a point by compelling a vote on laying the president's message before the senate, and succeeding in this, attacked the majority for refusing to act on the president's recommendation.

The main desire of those opposing adjournment was to secure a vote on the Harris resolution calling on the president to stop the sale of the government interests in the Union Pacific railroad. For four hours an acrimonious parliamentary contest was waged. Gradually the tactics of the opposition were overcome, shortly before 7 o'clock, Mr. Morgan withdrew further opposition and the resolution for final adjournment was passed. Complimentary resolutions to the vice-president, Mr. Hobart, were adopted and at 9 o'clock the final scene was enacted by the formal adjournment of the session.
